

Ryan's Rules of Order for Business Leaders

Ready for some positive change in your company? It's time to throw out Robert's Rules of Order and put Ryan's Rules of Order to work to create the positive, profitable results you desire.

1. You must be personally dedicated to holding the highest consciousness for the entire company and all your current and potential clients, no matter what any outward appearance may be.
2. You must own, recognize, embrace and verbalize your fears.
3. You must be willing to speak your microscopic truth with kindness, compassion, dignity and love.
4. You must assume that everyone is doing the best they can at this and every moment.
5. You must assume that everything that is occurring is for the highest good of everyone and the company, whether or not you see HOW it is for the highest good at this moment.
6. You must assume that everyone is operating from a position of love or goodness, never from a position of mal-intent, even if that love or goodness is being obscured by fear.
7. You must remember that everything is unfolding in Perfect Timing.

Paula Langguth Ryan is a conflict resolution consultant, dedicated to helping executives break through to new levels of confidence and abundance in all areas of their lives. She provides individual executive coaching and facilitates management and board meetings and in house negotiations, primarily with closely-held corporations. She conducts tailor-made in-service trainings for Boards of Directors, staff, employees and members in groups of all sizes. Her aim: to help corporations and business leaders achieve their goals and dreams. To learn more about how Ryan can be of service to you, call 800/507-9244 or email paula@compassionatemediators.com.